Elks Lodge Plans 'Freedom Week' Observance

"It's Your Freedom. Help Defend It."
This is the theme of the Salem Elks Lodge's "Freedom Week" observance set for next week, when the BPOE will stress the American privileges of freedom of speech and of the press.

"Freedom Week" was officially proclaimed by Mayor Dean Cranmer when the Salem lodge met Thursday night. Pictured above at the ceremony are (l. to r.) William Watkins, exalted ruler of the lodge; City Council President Ford Joseph, Jr.; Mayor Cranmer; Frank Earley,

Files for Building, But Reserves Decision

School Board Uncommitted On Post Office Application

A 13-page, highly-detailed application for acquisition of the old Post Office for Salem school purposes was delivered to Columbus today, but Board President O. A. Naragon made clear the filing does commit the board to take the surplus, half-century old structure.

Means of Negotiation

"The application is merely a means of negotiation," Naragon, cashier at the First National Bank, said today, "and a necessary step to determine if the building can be obtained free."

"Even if the Department of Health, Education and Welfare rules we can get the building at 100 per cent discount," he continued, "the board has still not reached a conclusion it wants."

"We—and we alone—are reserving the right to make the final decision on the acquisition after we hear the decision of HEW," he declared, lancing out at rumors that implied the school group has already committed itself to the acquisition.

Under No Commitment

Atty. Bryce Kendall, who recommended at the Dec. 17 meeting that the administrators draw up the application, firmly declared at that time and the board agreed that the group in filing for the building had made no legal or other commitment. This has been board's stand throughout the process of investigation into terms under which the building can be secured.

Six copies of the application bound in blue booklets were delivered personally this morning by Dan Papic, assistant supervisor of buildings and grounds to Walter G. Rhoten, chief of the State Agency for Property Utilization of the Ohio Department of Education.

Papic personally delivered the papers so that Supt. Paul E. Smith, who has been attending a curriculum study conference at Ohio State University, may sign the papers before taking them to Rhoten.

The state agency, however, is merely a go-between in the negotiations. Rhoten will sign copies to be forwarded immediately to the W. D. Musser, regional property coordinator of HEW in Chicago.

Musser and his staff will decide if and on what basis Salem schools may obtain the building. Administrators and board members feel confident that the acquisition will be granted, but must await the HEW's decision on terms.

In a nutshell the application stated the building will be used for administrative offices, maintenance headquarters, stock and

U.N. Keeping Close Tabs On Tshombe

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—President Moise Tshombe of Katanga was back under surveillance in his palace Thursday night after making a peace tour to the Rhodesian border and calling on his disorganized troops not to resist U.N. forces.

U.N. officials said Tshombe no longer was under house arrest because he showed willingness to cooperate with the United Nations. But they said he will have to observe the nightly curfew imposed on Elisabethville on Dec. 30 after U.N. forces seized control of the provincial capital.

A U.N. spokesman in New York said Tshombe will not be restrained otherwise unless he tries United Nations or renews his call for a scorched-earth policy.

Tshombe told newsmen in Mookamb, on the border of Northern Rhodesia, that he made his tour Thursday "to stop bloodshed and prove my good intentions."

But he insisted at a news conference that every movement by U.N. troops in a new direction in his province must be negotiated beforehand. The British consulate in Elisabethville said Tshombe had given a guarantee only for the movement of U.N. troops to Sakania, where the railroad crosses the Rhodesian border 200 miles southeast of Elisabethville.

The U.N. command still was apprehensive about the situation in

U.S., Russia Seek Test Pact

Soviet Make New Inspection Move

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union are privately exploring new approaches to a nuclear test ban agreement, the Washington Post said today.

A new Soviet overture toward breaking the deadlock on international inspection of a test ban is understood to have been made to the United States, the Post said.

"The nature and details of this move have been kept secret, and it is believed to be still in an embryonic state," the Post said.

"Whether it will in fact produce something tangible or end up as another false start is still unknown."

Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, is in Washington talking with U.S. officials. One of the subjects he discussed with President Kennedy Wednesday was disarmament.

Kuznetsov, former chief Soviet negotiator in the Geneva disarmament negotiations, conferred with Secretary of State Dean Rusk Thursday.

He meets today with William C. Foster, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

However, U.S. spokesman have made a point of specifying that Kuznetsov's talks have been "casual."

U.S. Navy Airplane Crashes In Alaska

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—A twin-engine Navy patrol plane carrying a crew of 12 crashed and burned as it approached for a landing Thursday night.

Five survivors were taken to a hospital at Kodiak Naval Air Station. They were reported in serious condition.

The plane, a P2, was approaching a landing strip at the Navy installation when it hit Womens Mountain, about 1,000 feet high near the end of the runway.

A Navy spokesman said rain was falling. He said the pilot had not radioed the plane was in trouble.

The base is almost ringed by mountains which rise to about 1000 feet.

The plane hit in scrub timber about one to two miles from the station.

The plane, based at Whidbey Island Naval Air Station, Wash., was temporarily assigned to the Alaska area. It was on a flight from Anchorage to Kodiak.

Despite Criticism of Allies

U.S. To Be Firm In World Affairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has decided to assert a more vigorous and determined American leadership in world affairs even at the cost of creating major frictions with U.S. allies, especially in Europe.

The President's determination is clearly disclosed in a discussion

'Background Briefings' by JFK To Halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington institution of journalistic background briefings probably is dead so far as President Kennedy is concerned.

And probably there will be few real mourners around the White House and even fewer among those newsmen who would prefer to get the news out in the open in the first place.

These backgrounders have a set of rules under which the person doing the briefing may not be quoted by name or in direct quotes. Reporters must resort to paraphrase and to pinning what they learn on unimpeachable sources, or, as in the case of the President, "the highest authority."

Kennedy held a background at Palm Beach, Fla., on New Year's eve with 35 newsmen clustered around the living room of his vacation residence. The stories went out afterward, attributed to the highest authority or friends of the President.

But then, over the weekend, two British newspapers turned up with direct quotes from the briefing and identified Kennedy as the source. White House authorities said there was some breaching of the rules in the American press.

So Thursday the White House made public some of the quotations picked up in Britain. Among the major points in the interview:

Allies—The President has decided to assert a more vigorous and determined American leadership in world affairs even at the cost of creating major friction with U.S. allies, especially in Europe.

Missiles—Kennedy believes one reason Britain has decided to accept the Polaris missile is because it "offers a hope of being an effective deterrent for a much longer period" than the now abandoned Skybolt.

Newsmen who attended the Palm Beach briefing, obeyed the rules and then saw Kennedy's words in print in British papers kicked up a rumpus. Now word is circulating that Kennedy probably will have no more backgrounders.

Cuban Ransom Flight Delayed

Hints More People May Leave Island

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A two-day postponement in a ransom cargo flight to Cuba stirred speculation today that another airlift possibly may develop for persons eager to leave Fidel Castro's country.

A Pan American Airways DC6B already laden with 15,000 pounds of medicines, had been scheduled to take off today for Havana, but its departure was postponed until Sunday.

Pan American said the Red Cross, to which the flight was donated, requested the postponement. Spokesmen for the airline said they did not know the reason for the postponement.

In Washington the State Department refused to comment on the postponement and a Red Cross spokesman said he had been advised of the shift in dates but did not know why it had been done.

A DC6B seats more than 100 passengers. Without seats, acting carry nearly 200.

Plans were afoot previously for a special flight to bring 250 Cuban-Americans to Miami, but that flight was canceled abruptly last week.

Also eager to leave Cuba are more than 20 Americans, imprisoned on various counterrevolutionary charges, and hundreds of relatives of the Bay of Pigs invasion prisoners who were ransomed for $53 million in badly needed American food and medicine.

The flight set up for Sunday may be the last air shipment of ransom installments to Cuba. An ocean cargo liner, the 490-foot SS Shirley Lykes, is scheduled to load 6,000 tons of ransom at Baltimore and then call at Port Everglades, north of Miami. There it will take on another 1,000 tons of food, pharmaceuticals, biologicals, vitamins and insecticides to hand over to Fidel Castro.

There it will take on another 1,000 tons of food, pharmaceuticals, biologicals, vitamins and insecticides to hand over to Fidel Castro.

Cardinal Cushing released a statement Thursday identifying himself as solely responsible for the collection of the $1 million. He said he made the statement because of the many rumors concerning the "mysterious donor."

The prelate also said he wanted to clarify reports that the gift had come from sources "with which I have no identification."

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro made a last-minute demand for $2.9 million in cash before he would release 1,113 Bay of Pigs prisoners. He claimed the money was owed him for the release last April of 60 other prisoners, sick and wounded.

The money was in addition to the $53 million worth of food and drugs used to ransom the 1,113 prisoners. Gen. Lchius D. Clay head of a committee which advised and assisted families of the prisoners, obtained a $1.9 million loan on his own signature.

It was announced at the time that the other $1 million was contributed, at the request of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, by an anonymous donor.

Shortages At Bank Here Are Reported

L. H. Colley president of the First National Bank, today confirmed that two cash shortages totaling $5,489 had recently been discovered in the bank.

The cases occurred at different times and are not related to each other. No customer's accounts were involved in any way. In each case full restitution has been made and the two young clerical employees concerned are no longer with the bank.

A full report has been made to the chief national bank examiner, Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U.S. district attorney.

Salem Men, 2 Others Held In Burglary

Two Salem area brothers are among four men being held in Pittsburgh on charges of looting a tool firm and possessing burglary tools.

The suspects, James Dinsio, 33, formerly of Franklin St., Amil Dinsio, 26, of near Greenford Alfred Oponowicz, 37, of Cleveland, and Daniel A. Boscia, 41, of Pittsburgh were ordered held for court Thursday at a preliminary hearing before Magistrate John J. Fiorucci in Pittsburgh Downtown Magistrate's Court.

Detective Lt. Eugene Coon and Sgt. John F. Stack said the four were arrested near the Power Tool Supply Co., 3519 Bigelow Blvd., Wednesday night.

Police recovered an estimated $2,546 worth of drills and bits taken from the firm and $28.30 in cash that had been stolen from the company's cash register.

The suspects were nabbed by police, who had staked out an area in the vicinity of the firm, as they were attempting to flee the scene. Police said the men were loading tools and bits in a station wagon when they apparently became suspicious.

Leaving most of the tools behind, the men fled but were grabbed by radio car patrolmen within a block of the company.

Amil and James Dinsio, operators of strip coal mines near Greenford and Leetonia, have been free on $2,500 bond each following their late November indictment by the Mahoning grand jury on six counts of receiving $21,500 in stolen property.

Their brothers and business partners, Vincent M. Dinsio, 40, of Washingtonville and William D. Dinsio, 36, of near Salem also were indicted by the Mahoning jury and freed on the same amount of bond. Their trial has not been set.

Pittsburgh police said Oponowicz is free on bond from a burglary charge in Cleveland.

City Debt Swells to $8,057 order that back bills for the city's general relief be paid soon.

Auditor Coyne reported that the relief office has been deficient of funds for a number of years until at the end of last year the relief office debt mounted to more than $8,000.

"Until now," explained the auditor the relief office has been operated entirely on excise tax which comes from the state and is distributed through the county."

The amount of money coming to the local office in excise tax was $4,400 less in 1962 than in 1961, Mrs. Coyne reports. She declares that the poor relief office has never asked for money from the general fund before now because there has never been sufficient money in the general fund to request.

"With city income tax revenue there is money which can be used for poor relief," the auditor said.

LISBON — An Akron man was placed on probation for auto theft at a hearing Thursday before Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard.

L. D. Lafever, 28, was placed on a five-years' probation for the theft of auto owned by Elizabeth E. Beatty, Glenmoor, last June.

Lafever has been in the county jail since the theft. Indicted by the September grand jury, he pleaded guilty and asked for probation when he was arraigned Sept. 24.

TO PRESENT PLAQUE

BETHEL, Ohio (AP) — The Southwest Ohio district of the American Legion plans to give a plaque to Dr. Albert B. Savin, developer of oral polio vaccine, during its District conference Sunday.

TO ANSWER CHARGES

HAMILTON Ohio (AP) — Officials of two Fairfield stores have been ordered to appear in Butler County Common Pleas Court Monday to answer charges of operating on Sunday.

The stores involved are Rink's Bargain City and Miracle Mart.

PAY HIKE RESCINDED CINCINNATI (AP)—A 2.5 per cent pay raise for 1,600 Hamilton County employees has been rescinded as the result of a change of party control in the Board of Commissioners.

The old, Democrat-dominated board passed the raise last week as its last official act. The Republicans, who took control as a result of the November election, rescinded the raises Thursday.

LEAVES BOND IN LISBON

LISBON — Thomas Leroy Walter, 58, of 522 E. Chestnut St. forfeited a $10 bond Thursday in Mayor Dean Stockman's court when he failed to appear on a charge of failing to stop for a stop sign. He was cited by village police.

This is the economical Newport 4-door sedan

We price them small. But we build them big.

$2964 is the kind of price most people associate with a smaller car. They seldom expect to find it on a full-size, precision-engineered Chrysler Newport 4-door sedan.

After all, look at all the value a Chrysler offers. Features like torsion-bar suspension; all-welded, one-piece body; carpeting; trip odometer; and the Newport engine that performs like a champ on regular gasoline.

Then, there's the way a Chrysler is put together. Quality all the way. So well made, in fact, that your Chrysler dealer provides you with America's longest and best new car warranty—5 years or 50,000 miles. You have fewer worries about expensive repair bills. And because the warranty can be passed on to the next owner, you can count on excellent Chrysler resale value.

So, if you cotton to smaller prices, big value and big cars (remember, we don't build any jr. editions) get in touch with your Chrysler dealer.

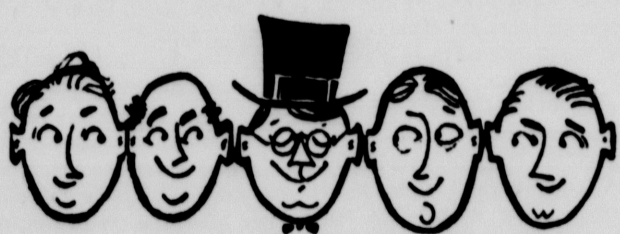

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price of Newport 4-door sedan, exclusive of state and local taxes, if any, and destination charges. White wall tires extra.

Mating Call to Fatter Payrolls

James A. Rhodes' appointment of George E. Wilson of Akron to take the reins of his industrial development program gives the governor-elect's campaign proposal a ring of promise.

To date, Mr. Rhodes' program to pump new vitality into Ohio's industrial climate has not, despite his own enthusiasm, been widely acclaimed as an absolute answer to the state's needs. No one else can be as sure that his "new jobs" plan will work as he is.

But appointing Mr. Wilson, who helped draft the detailed recommendations that will be considered by the new General Assembly, gives the program a better chance of hitting the target.

It's a broad and bold program. The report submitted to the governor-elect by James J. Nancy of Cleveland and Mr. Wilson places heavy emphasis on tax adjustments and research and development to encourage industrial growth.

WE DON'T KNOW how much of the program the General Assembly will buy. But Ohio must get moving—and fast—to compete with states turning themselves inside out to woo industry away from Ohio.

Gov. DiSalle Has a Theory

Gov. Michael V. DiSalle has said publicly he lost his bid for re-election to the Ohio governorship because his administration was forced to raise taxes in 1959.

His theory about his defeat is interesting. Gov. DiSalle formerly wanted to believe there could be a rational approach to all public problems, chiefly the problem of raising enough revenue to pay for the things the state of Ohio needed to do.

To this end he held finance seminars to explain and justify the need for a higher budget. His position was logical. He argued that if Ohio chose to continue to grow and keep pace with other states its citizens would have to step up the state's rate of spending and also its rate of taxing.

Never before had the chief spokesman for a state administration been so blunt about the connection between spending and taxing. Never before had a governor gone into such detail about the philosophy of public spending and the cost of progress in education, public health, highways capital improvements and social welfare.

IT IS EASY to understand why Gov. DiSalle thinks this was his downfall. He made

Annexation Facts

As talk continues to circulate over possible, eventual annexation of certain Perry Township areas to the City of Salem, statistical information is needed.

At Councilman Jack Rance's suggestion, a special City Council committee has been named to look into the situation. We believe that the Chamber of Commerce ought to appoint a similar committee. Together, they could set up a research department to dig out the facts and figures on annexation. This might go a long way toward preventing confusion when the time comes, even if it were five or 10 years hence.

Shop At Home

An aged Salem man who was charged $1,700 by an out-of-town firm for installation of a new hot water heater and copper tubing wouldn't have paid more than $200 if he had contacted a local plumber for the job. Police are checking out the complaint but there's nary a scent on the trail.

Last summer an elderly lady paid a group of itinerant roofers $265 for a minor chimney repair, then gave the matter her better judgment and telephoned the bank to stop payment on the check but the "pros" had got there first.

Moral: It's always best to shop at home. It's cheaper, too.

Birthday Party

As about everybody knows, Carl Sandburg the poet-philosopher had a ball at his 85th birthday party. He and Mrs. Sandburg had their picture taken cutting the birthday cake at the Waldorf and millions of their fellow Americans enjoyed seeing these two senior citizens kicking up their heels.

It should surprise no one to know there was a special reason for the heel-kicking. Old Man Sandburg is coming out with a new book of poems, and his publishers used the birthday party to kick off the sales campaign.

Sandburg poems, thanks to the long life and fame of their author, have a market. Other poems, some better than Sandburg's, go begging because no one gives a damn.

But here is this oldest and his fellow poet-philosopher Robert Frost, who was born March 26, 1874, both going strong because they represent something pleasantly out of the ordinary.

The world has a special niche for oldsters who make use of their accumulated knowledge, wisdom and skill.

It does this in the spirit of dissent from the prevailing view that old men and women are used up after they pass a certain chronological age and thereafter are social problems.

How pleasant for a change to think of advanced age in some connotation other than the high cost of sickness. How refreshing to be reminded that in the creative arts here is addition of power with years, rather than attrition.

Men's minds can improve with age even Businessmen, it must be admitted, do not think of loyalty as something they owe Ohio. They can be talked out of leaving the state by boomers from the South who come up with all kinds of holds and tricks.

Even Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, hardly the prototype of what northerners admire in political leadership, was in Chicago a few days ago for the avowed purpose of twisting enterprise into his state—and away from Illinois.

OHIO IS NOT interested in the twisting specialized in by hard-sell boomers from the South.

It wants first of all to keep established enterprise here by giving it an even more favorable environment than enterprise traditionally has had in this state.

Beyond that, it wants to make Ohio's advantages known to industries and to capital looking for a new environment—to help new enterprise get started here and to give established enterprise that wants to make a fresh start a boost over the rough places.

Ohio needs to get into the job-wooing business on a big scale. We hope the Rhodes plan will be just the kind of mating call that will attract fatter payrolls.

it the central point in his administration—the thing he stressed above everything else. Therefore, when he was defeated he concluded that he had been defeated on the central issue of his administration.

It is doubtful if it caused his defeat. The emotional impact of the tax increase probably was dissipated in the 1960 voting.

Far likelier, he was defeated when he ran for re-election because he had been elected four years before on a political fluke—the upset that swept C. William O'Neill out of office, defeated John Bricker and confirmed the grisliest fears of those who had warned against the consequences of the right-to-work amendment.

It makes more sense to think his defeat was caused by the circumstances of his on-again-off-again decision to run; by the fact Ohio has become a strongly Republican state, as shown in its voting in the 1960 presidential election; even by the fact that Gov. DiSalle as the state's first four-year governor became the victim of Ohioans' first four-year accumulation of grievances against a state administration.

MOREOVER, since there shortly is to be an inaugural in Columbus, it has to be acknowledged that just about any candidate could have expected to finish second to a campaigner like Gov.-elect James Rhodes, who set the pace all the way and ran his race going away.

The idea of paying higher taxes is never popular. We suspect it never can be rationalized to make it seem more palatable than it actually is on an emotional basis. But whether taxation licked Michael V. DiSalle in his bid for re-election in 1962 is questionable—deeply questionable.

Nelson Comes to Town

Earl W. Nelson of Steubenville, Gov. James Rhodes' choice for deputy director of highways in Division 11, already has been in Salem to acquaint himself with projects which are of particular interest to our community.

Nelson, who does not take over his new duties at the New Philadelphia district office until next week, was a guest of Republican leaders at the Salem Chamber of Commerce luncheon Wednesday at the Golf Club and conferred afterwards with County Engineer Charles O. Snyder and others concerning needed road improvements. Needless to say, the proposed relocations of U.S. Route 62 and State Route 45 were discussed.

We hope that Mr. Nelson always will keep Salem in mind. He will find local civic leaders and city officials both cooperative and persuasive.

By Truman Twill

though their physical strength dwindles. A wise man never quits growing wiser.

Only in those places where usefulness depends on the chance to be active, rather than on some endowment of personal skill and knowledge has it become the rule that usefulness can be terminated by decree.

It never has been properly understood that retirement plans in business and industry exist only to sweeten the bitter blow of being cast out arbitrarily and that the policy of casting out was decreed by cabals organized to shove the old walrus off the cliff onto the jutting rocks below so the young walrus could have things their own way.

The least thing anyone worried about was the old walrus. The era of the young walrus had been ushered in, said the young walrus, and they could not be denied because they had the upper hand and the backing of two new instruments of power—the labor union and cost accounting.

Accountants could show that it cost more for old walrus than for young walrus, and unions could show that it was good tactics to enroll new and younger members to keep their treasuries filled.

What was going to happen to aging men and women left with nothing but time on their hands was no concern of the bushy-tails who were hell-bent on making life sweeter for the young.

Never have so many uninvited guests enjoyed a birthday party as enjoyed Carl Sandburg's when he turned 85, still going strong. Everybody over 65 was there in spirit.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Taking a pad and pencil in hand and doing a little figuring, this correspondent finds that, in the time he has been writing a daily dispatch about national affairs from Washington the annual expenditures of the federal government have multiplied 136 times. Next year's spending, for instance, is to be $100 billion, whereas in 1916 it was only three-fourths of a billion.

It isn't, of course, the same dollar it used to be. Thus, in terms of the purchasing power of the 1916 dollar, the federal spending today would be figured at $36 billion. So, on this basis, it has gone up 49 times since 1916.

Yet the population of the United States is only twice what it was in that year.

Another way to look at it is in terms of gold. It would have cost only 36 million ounces of gold in 1916 to get the equivalent of the federal expenditures in that year. Today it costs 2.85 billion ounces of gold to equal the federal expenditures of the coming year, or about 80 times what it cost in 1916.

There has been in the interim, to be sure, a revaluation of gold. In 1934, it went from $20.67 an ounce to $35 an ounce. It has stayed at that price ever since, though lately the gold producers abroad have been agitating to have the official price here raised by the United States government.

AS EXPENSES grow and deficits enlarge, the value of the monetary unit, expressed in terms of gold as well as goods, tends to go down. Adam Smith, the famous economist, in his remarkable book, "The Wealth of Nations," published in 1776, described the tendency of governments from the days of the republics of Greece and Rome to devalue the monetary unit and thereby cheat the people.

In ancient Rome, the name of "sow." When it ceased to have the "dollar" of those days was the "solidus." It survived for many generations, and it was a part of the French coinage system, becoming known as the any value whatsoever in recent years, there came into the world's vocabulary the expression: "not worth a sou."

Since 1916, the dollar has gone down from 100 cents to 36 cents in purchasing power. If this decline continues over the next few decades, the dollar itself may be worth 10 cents or less in comparison with preceding decades.

Two world wars and the Korean War have, to be sure, sent the federal budgets upward, but somehow, even when the wars are over, there is an inclination to keep up the high level of spending. Today, the cold war is costing more money per year than the annual outlay at the time the United States was participating in World War I. Expenditures, on the other hand, for non-armament purposes are rising faster than those necessary for armament.

A STRANGE delusion has emerged from the pens of many of the present day economists. They argue that bigger and bigger deficits mean more and more prosperity. There are some professors who contend that bigger deficits should not be constant but only intermittent so as to stimulate growth. This is the view being accepted by President Kennedy. It has been proved fallacious throughout history, and doubtless will be again.

Deficits cause the dollar, in effect, to be devalued as prices rise and the purchasing power of the monetary unit itself declines. The gross national product grows bigger, but if the dollar is worth only 36 cents, you have to have three times as many dollars for the same purchasing power. Thus, in terms of 1916 dollars, the gross national product of about $560 billion today would be only $202 emerged from the pens of many billion.

Unfortunately, not every segment of the economy is able to move up its prices to meet inflationary effects. This produces hardships which disrupt the whole business process in a free-enterprise system. Under dictatorships, the government fixes prices and arbitrarily says what the monetary unit shall be worth.

America's real problem is on the spending side. Today the champions of "spend and spend" are in the saddle. They are conscientious persons, of course, who really believe that liberalism is a synonym for progressivism and that conservatism is just a stand-pat philosophy.

The real difference between those who advocate deficit spending and those who want to conserve the value of the monetary unit is that most of the former school of thought disregard the experience of people who have gone broke. They delude themselves into believing that a central government just can't go broke.

IT'S TRUE governments never stop functioning and they never are formally adjudged bankrupt. But governments, instead, tamper with the currency and gradually devalue it, so that the dollar, for example, will buy less and less.

The only way out then is to try to earn more dollars, or collect more dollars by higher and higher taxes, or stop spending more than is collected.

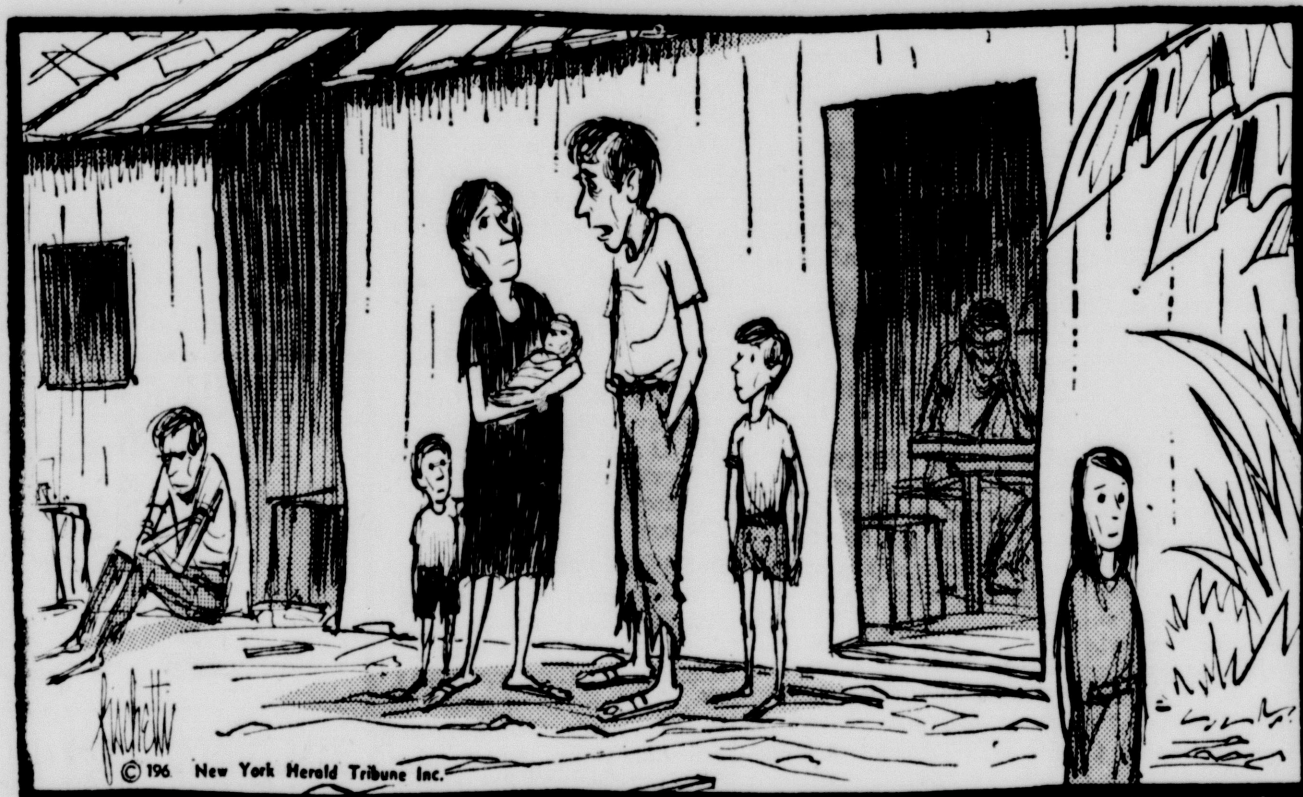

Devaluation has been found necessary by various governments in Europe and Latin America in recent years. This has brought temporary relief but over a span of time the remedy wears out and the disease recurs. Only then are the lessons of experience really learned—at least for a while.

Strikes Outmoded In Some Circles

By VICTOR RIESEL

During the final days of '62, the experts reckoned that the newspaper and waterfront strikes were costing all sides some $30 in lost profits, wages and other income.

For the first time this stirred liberals and conservatives alike into parallel actions — aimed at the restriction of the absolute right to strike.

Thus on Saturday, Dec. 29, Sen. McClellan dispatched his chief counsel, Jerry Adlerman, to New York City. Once there, Adlerman telephoned three mighty doctory and militant waterfront strike leaders — longshoremen's president, Bill Bradley, ex-tugboat captain, Teddy Gleason, executive vice president, and Anthony Anastasia, better known as Tough Tony, vice president. The Senate investigator asked them to come down to the federal building for discussions.

BUT THE TRIO said they were negotiating with the shipowners in a deadlocked strike which, they added, could end with the loss of more than 5,000 jobs on the New York waterfront alone. The shipowners have countered the union with some arithmetic which states that the union's new asking price would add $300 million annually to the nation's East and Gulf Coast shipping charges.

So Adlerman and an aide went uptown. First they met in the Hotel Commodore coffee shop with Teddy Gleason, then with Bradley and Anastasia in their rooms. The longshoremen's leaders charged they were being presented by the government. But Adlerman's questioning did not substantiate this charge.

The investigator was interested in discovering for his chief, Sen. McClellan, the full impact of a two-coast dock strike on our railroads, our farms, our industries, our highways. And on the loss of customers abroad, the impact on the inflow of gold, the loss of business to our competitors in the Common Market bloc.

What McClellan wants to know is the specific effect of such strikes on the public, on the nation, on its safety, its welfare, its health.

THE SENATOR truly is a one-man inquisitive society. The waterfront is merely part of what interests him as he prepares to push in Congress for anti-strike laws.

He is also concerned by Jimmy Hoffa's drive for a common expiration date of all labor contracts covering all the nation's trucking and warehouses. Suppose, says McClellan, Hoffa said "no contract, no work" on some expiration date. How could this land function? Should any one man have the right to decide on what day most of the United States shall stand still?

"Obviously no," says McClellan with that final firm tone in his voice so many of us got to know during the big racket probe. I'm introducing my bill about

Feb. 1. We're not yet on the final draft. But, I don't think we should permit strikes in interstate transportation. I don't believe the public should suffer.

"I say that a civilized people under a system of government representative of the people should have the intellect and the courage to find a better method of resolving labor-management disputes, where vital national interest is involved, than by a test of economic power."

ON THE VERY morning of the senator's conversation with this columnist, word came that the waterfront strike had cost $400 million. On this same morning I talked to New York's liberal Republican Sen. Jack Javits. He too said he would have a labor peace bill ready within a month. He said he had been talking with some of his senatorial colleagues.

"We will introduce," said Javits, "legislation giving the president more power in a national emergency. I am doing my utmost to get others with a liberal view on labor to join me, on the ground that this (such laws) is the best way to do it."

"Our credentials are right." In effect, Javits wants to give the president the power to name fact-finding boards with authority to make public recommendations. Then if this doesn't end a national or other vital strike Javits would give the president the right to seize and operate the installations where the health the welfare or the safety of the land is threatened.

SEN. McCLELLAN appears to be thinking more of a tribunal on which would sit industrial, labor and public representatives. This court would have the power to settle an industrial civil war.

As for those around the President, they want a two part law. First, the president would be empowered to declare a "reasonable period" during which both sides have to get together. If they fail to agree he would have the authority to force arbitration upon them.

Obviously in some mighty important circles strikes are going out of style.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a 52-year-old hard-hitting hard driven businessman. We have a lovely home and a fine family but he is too busy to notice. When the stock market goes down a quarter of a point he notices THAT, however.

Three years ago Lew had a serious heart attack. His doctors told him he must lose 40 pounds and quit smoking. He hasn't lost an ounce and he smokes more than ever.

He has had diabetes for 10 years and is all right when he remembers to take his medicine. When he doesn't remember he goes into shock. This has happened twice in the last six months.

I've begged, pleaded, threatened, cried and even left him but nothing fazes him. He still eats whatever he wants, smokes, drinks too much and works 14 hours a day. What can I do with a man like this?—FRANTIC.

Dear Frantic: Nothing. But you can do something for yourself and your family. See that his insurance is in order and check with his lawyer to make certain he has made a will.

Too-Tight Ties

Dear Ann: I am 19, and live at home with my parents and two older sisters.

When I was graduated from high school two years ago I wanted to leave this small town and go to a designing school in Chicago but my parents and older sisters wouldn't hear of it. They said they'd miss me and worry about me and besides, they said, there is too much newness in the world and they didn't want me to get involved in it.

Maybe I should be grateful for the love and interest of my family but instead I am resentful. We talked about this again last night and they tell me I'm ungrateful and that I have no right to worry them.

If this is love, I hope I never love my children. Please help me. —CARBONDALE.

DEAR CARBONDALE: Love makes no demands. It is willing to take its chances, for all of life is risky. The Indian poet, Tagore, said, "Let my love, like sunlight, surround you and give you illumined freedom." And this is what love should do. Love that shackles and imprisons is not love at all.

The ultimate goal which parents should wish for their children is independence. So leave the nest, little bird, while you still have the desire and the courage to fly.

Ruled By Daughter

Dear Ann: Our daughter, Roxanne, was 15 last August. She always has acted older than her years and even began dating at 12. We just couldn't hold her.

She met sailor who is based nearby and has gone completely crazy over him. He is 20 years old, doesn't say much, has tattoos on his hands and arms and a cigarette hangs out of his mouth at all times.

The sailor will be leaving soon for 18 months of overseas duty. Roxanne wants to be "pre-engaged" to him before he ships out. She says this is not a regular engagement, just an understanding that they will wait for each other. They would wear each other's friendship rings.

go down. Adam Smith, the famous economist, in his remarkable book, "The Wealth of Nations," published in 1776, described the tendency of governments from the days of the republics of Greece and Rome to devalue the monetary unit and thereby cheat the people.

In ancient Rome, the name of "sow." When it ceased to have the "dollar" of those days was the "solidus." It survived for many generations, and it was a part of the French coinage system, becoming known as the any value whatsoever in recent years, there came into the world's

Since 1916, the dollar has gone down from 100 cents to 36 cents in purchasing power. If this decline continues over the next few decades, the dollar itself may be worth 10 cents or less in comparison with preceding decades.

Two world wars and the Korean War have, to be sure, sent the federal budgets upward, but somehow, even when the wars are over, there is an inclination to keep up the high level of spending. Today, the cold war is costing more money per year than the annual outlay at the time the United States was participating in World War I. Expenditures, on the other hand, for non-armament purposes are rising faster than those necessary for armament.

A STRANGE delusion has emerged from the pens of many of the present day economists. They argue that bigger and bigger deficits mean more and more prosperity. There are some professors who contend that bigger deficits should not be constant but only intermittent so as to stimulate growth. This is the view being accepted by President Kennedy. It has been proved fallacious throughout history, and doubtless will be again.

Deficits cause the dollar, in effect, to be devalued as prices rise and the purchasing power of the monetary unit itself declines. The gross national product grows bigger, but if the dollar is worth only 36 cents, you have to have three times as many dollars for the same purchasing power. Thus, in terms of 1916 dollars, the gross national product of about $560 billion today would be only $202 emerged from the pens of many billion.

Unfortunately, not every segment of the economy is able to move up its prices to meet inflationary effects. This produces hardships which disrupt the whole business process in a free-enterprise system. Under dictatorships, the government fixes prices and arbitrarily says what the monetary unit shall be worth.

America's real problem is on the spending side. Today the champions of "spend and spend" are in the saddle. They are conscientious persons, of course, who really believe that liberalism is a synonym for progressivism and that conservatism is just a stand-pat philosophy.

The real difference between those who advocate deficit spending and those who want to conserve the value of the monetary unit is that most of the former school of thought disregard the experience of people who have gone broke. They delude themselves into believing that a central government just can't go broke.

IT'S TRUE governments never stop functioning and they never are formally adjudged bankrupt. But governments, instead, tamper with the currency and gradually devalue it, so that the dollar, for example, will buy less and less.

The only way out then is to try to earn more dollars, or collect more dollars by higher and higher taxes, or stop spending more than is collected.

Devaluation has been found necessary by various governments in Europe and Latin America in recent years. This has brought temporary relief but over a span of time the remedy wears out and the disease recurs. Only then are the lessons of experience really learned—at least for a while.

To the hunter or to the gourmet, it will be interesting to know that in the second half of the 20th century one game bird was raised for every 38 domestic turkeys produced, one for every 16 ducks, one for every 1.5 geese, and one for every 1.3 guineas. In North America the term "game bird" includes quail, pheasant, grouse and partridge, ducks, geese and swans, woodcock, snipe and prower.

Folklore experts believe that the popular Halloween customs harvest festival of Pomona and of Druidism. These influences are inferred from the use of nuts and apples as traditional Halloween foods and from the figures of witches, black cats and skeletons, commonly associated with the occasion.

31-Day Wonders

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the month of the 31-day wonders in the average U. S. business office.

A business office, like the human heart, operates by pulses and pauses.

January is a pulse month, a purposeful month. It makes up only about a twelfth of the year, but in most offices at least a sixth of the year's work is done in January.

Now is the time when new enterprises are launched. The old year with all its failures and disappointments is buried. The new year shakes a strong and eager fist at tomorrow.

January is a hope month. January is a pep month. Everybody pops and crackles like a brand new box of breakfast food, freshly opened.

The boss calls the top yes-men into conference and shows them neat charts showing business going up...up...and way up!

"We'll do at least 15 per cent better this year, or my name isn't Phineas T. Boggle," he growls cheerfully, chomping on the ruin of a six-bit cigar.

"Why not set a goal of at least 20 per cent better, chief, and then let's go on from there?" burbles his favorite cheerleader.

Everybody nods enthusiastically. Why not? The big boys leave the conference room all fired up, as if they had just caught the ball on the one-yard line and were running it back for a touchdown.

The enthusiasm seeps from the executive thinking level down to the working level.

It is as if a beneficent plague had infected the office. Each hired hand seems determined to outdo the guy at the next desk.

The staff gets to work on time, the coffee breaks get shorter, the line at the water cooler is smaller.

Yes, January is the month of the 31-day wonders in most business offices.

But what happens? January ends, and February begins. The pulse has pulsed. A pause inevitably follows.

Silently and invisibly enthusiasm wanes. The office staff suddenly tires of the thrall of winter, the sense of rush...rush...rush. The erosion of the workaday rut begins to chafe again.

The feeling of high and holy endeavor vanishes. The problem again becomes one mainly of merely getting the job done.

The white collar peon no longer sees the "Do It Now" sign on his desk. His glazed eyes are fixed in fancy on a green isle far away, washed by a murmuring sea.

But the boss doesn't just sit there daydreaming. He does something. Something constructive.

"I'm going down to Miami for a couple of weeks and take a look-see into the possibility of us opening a branch office there," he tells his yes-men. "Guess I might as well lug along my golf clubs—on the off-chance I'll be in a crowd in a few rounds."

One by one the staff begin to come in a few moments late to work. The coffee breaks stretch on 10 minutes to 20. The hour lunch to an hour and a half. The suggestion box is empty.

WCTU To Present Books to School

Seventy-six books pertaining to temperance education will be presented to Salem Senior High School this month by the Salem Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The gift of books includes 35 copies of the "Narcotics Family" which will be used by Alton Allen in his health class for seniors, and copies of "What Everyone Should Know About the Constitution of the United States of America" which will be used in the Problems of Democracy classes.

The remaining copies will be placed in two secondary school libraries.

The books have been approved by Supt. of Schools Paul Smith, who has expressed his appreciation to the union for its continued interest in the school program. Temperance education in schools is one of the 22 fields in which the WCTU seeks to serve the community.

The decision to provide the gift of books to the Salem High School was made at a recent meeting of the union in the Salvation Army Citadel. Rev. Constance Gough gave the devotions on the theme "Sow More, Reap More." Miss Pearl Walker, president, welcomed Mrs. John Herald as a new member.

Special features will be arranged for the Feb. 5 meeting which will probably be held in the Citadel.

A BIG STICK! This is the Nike Zeus, one of our newest weapons against nuclear missiles. Your taxes are needed to pay for its development as part of our vital defense effort. But some people would have our federal government spend your tax dollars for more federal electric systems. This is needless spending. Along with the nation's more than 300 other investor-owned electric companies, we can provide all the electricity our growing nation will need. This is no time for needless tax spending.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT
Questions and Answers

Q—Last summer I developed Bell's palsy. My face is drawn to the left and I can't smile. My doctor gave me a course of injections of vitamin B-12 and other kinds of medicine. Is there any kind of exercise that will strengthen the muscles?

A—Facial paralysis may be due to various causes including injury, exposure to cold, infection, and tumors. More often than not the cause cannot be determined.

Although most persons with this condition recover spontaneously, electrical stimulation with a galvanic current helps to keep the paralyzed muscles from wasting away while nature is restoring the nerves that control them. In acute cases adrenal hormones such as cortisone may help.

Q—I have a dry mouth and lips. I have been under a doctor's care but I have not had any relief. Can I be helped?

A—Certain drugs, such as belladonna, will cause dryness of the mouth. If you have not been taking any of these drugs, a search should be made for the cause. Removing the cause is always the most satisfactory method of treatment. If the cause cannot be found, you will have to settle for palliative measures.

Sometimes starting a meal with a very sour pickle will start the flow of saliva. Be sure to clean your mouth thoroughly after meals. If the dryness is especially troublesome between meals, it may help to take a little cooking oil in your mouth and use the tongue to coat all the inner surfaces. Cold cream should be applied to the lips. Also there are various stick preparations in the market which are helpful.

Q—I understand myelitis is a degeneration of the spinal nerves. Is recovery possible? What treatment is used?

A—There are several kinds of myelitis or inflammation of the spinal cord. Poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis which is due to a virus in one form. In all forms a wasting of the muscles supplied by the involved nerves usually results. Massage and movement (both voluntary and assisted by a nurse or physiotherapy aid) may help to limit the disease but complete recovery is rare. No curative drug or other treatment is known.

Q—I am 35 years old. My doctor tells me I have chorioretinitis caused by toxoplasmosis. Can anything be done for this? I am almost blind.

A—Toxoplasmosis is a general infection caused by a unicellular animal parasite, the toxoplasma.

In many persons the infection causes no symptoms but if it does cause disease, the symptoms are usually severe. It is sometimes acquired by eating raw or undercooked pork but this is not the only way it is spread. Details on the mode of transmission are not yet fully understood.

The parasite frequently attacks the retina. A combination of sulfa drugs and pyrimethamine is of value in halting the course of the disease, but cannot be expected to restore tissues, such as the retina, after they have been severely damaged.

Q—Are Enovid pills safe to take? What are the side effects?

A—Enovid is a powerful synthetic steroid hormone. After some exhaustive studies the American Medical Assn. has reported that it is safe.

Earlier reports that it caused clotting of the blood in the veins have not been substantiated. Possible side effects include headache and nausea. This valuable drug has several uses. For the proper dosage in your case consult your doctor.

FELINE FINERY—Scandinavian furrier introduced matching ocelot hat and coat at a London showing.

book room, reading laboratory, curriculum laboratory and offices for the nurse, pupil personnel and psychologist.

Supt. Smith has reported that the building, if the board decides it's a bargain, would require an outlay of less than $10,000 to put it into shape for the expressed purposes. If the board takes final action, it is estimated that three months would be needed to renovate the interior.

However, Assistant Superintendent D. M. Fadely said the changes would be made gradually due to a lack of money and lack of urgency to complete the re-modeling.

The board quickly leaped at the opportunity to obtain at a nominal cost of $244 a large quantity of old, but sound, furniture and other equipment left behind when postal workers moved to the new building at Columbia and Penn Sts. last May.

This personal property was declared surplus, separate from the building, by General Services Administration, and released to Rhoten's agency. Supt. Smith said the $244 is only a fraction of the initial cost of the equipment.

The equipment includes safes, office chairs and desks, sorting tables and bins, two large circulating fans, six smaller floor fans, wood and metal lockers and a drinking fountain.

Kolwezi, the major industrial center 150 miles northwest of Elisabethville, where dihard followers of Tshombe were reported ready to blow up the copper and cobalt plants and a power dam if the U.N. tried to move in.

There was no indication yet what the U.N. command plans to do about Kolwezi. A report from Kitwe, just across the border in Northern Rhodesia, said Katanga Interior Minister Godefroid Munongo left Mokambo for Kolwezi after conferring with Tshombe.

Secretary-General U Thant had ordered Tshombe put under house arrest Tuesday after the fiery president threatened to detonate the installations a Kolwezi if U.N. forces advanced on the town. The order was lifted after Tshombe offered to cooperate, and he set out on his peace pilgrimage.

Tshombe drove to the border in a black sedan, exhorting remnants of his troops not to fire on a U.N. column trying to open clogged road and rail supply lines from Northern Rhodesia to food-short Elisabethville.

Tshombe made the 174-mile journey to the border town of Mokambo without a shot being fired. A lone U.N. jeep escorted the presidential limousine as it moved slowly several miles ahead of the U.N. column.

The U.N. column camped for the night in Mokambo and planned to push on today to Sakania.

Moonshining Still 'Big Business' In Ohio, Liquor Officers Claim

By PHIL GUNBY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Moonshining—the illicit distilling of whiskey to avoid paying state and federal taxes — is increasing in Ohio, liquor control officials say. "For every still seized in Ohio, there are at least three stills operating," says Ivy O. Toler, supervisor of the stills squad and intelligence branch of the state liquor department. Working with U. S. Treasury Department agents, Toler's men knocked off 65 stills in Ohio in the past year, 69 the year before, and 39 in both 1959 and 1960. Toler says he agrees with the estimate that, for every seven gallons of liquor produced, at least one is moonshine. "For years and years, the stills were in Ohio's southern counties," says Toler, who took the state job after retiring as an investigator in the U. S. Treasury Department's Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division in 1959. "Then, suddenly, they broke out in Cleveland. Now there are more of them in the cities than in the hills. They've spread to Youngstown and elsewhere."

Stills often are set up in attics of old homes or in warehouses and the like in Ohio cities, says Toler, who spent many of his 37 years of federal service tracking down moonshiners in Ohio.

Federal and state enforcement officials have their problems both in the cities and the brush. While an attic still in a city may smell up the neighborhood for blocks, the odor sometimes is less apparent close up because it is originating from a height.

In the brush, agents have to cope with snakes, foul weather and nervously vigilant moonshiners who skedaddle at the sight of a strange automobile or unusual sounds in the underbrush.

Moonshiners run risks besides arrest, Toler says—explosion, rivalry with other illegal distillers which can lead to bloodshed, and disability or death from using their own product.

On the latter score, J. D. Scanlan and Toler are in complete agreement, as they are in most other aspects of the battle against illegal distilling.

Scanlan is assistant supervisor in charge of enforcement in the U. S. Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Divisions' Cincinnati office. He and Toler work together so closely that Ivan W. Smith, deputy state liquor director in charge of enforcement, says:

"Except on payday, when they draw their checks from separate agencies, you wouldn't know they're from separate authorities."

Both Scanlan and Toler say that the frequently unsanitary conditions under which moonshine is produced, lye and paint thinner and other things used to hasten fermentation or stretch out the supply, and lead salts often picked up from the still, all are distinct threats to anyone drinking the stuff.

With mash, sugar, ground-up corn, water, his still and a fire, the moonshiner can produce 5 to 5½ gallons of 90-proof moonshine for $3 to $4, Toler says. The transporter—a specialist who has a delivery route and usually an automobile with booster springs so the bottled load won't show—pays $5 to $6 a gallon and sells it for $10.

The dealer who buys it for $10 then "pints it out" and gets $16 to $20 a gallon.

Why do those who buy the pints go to all this trouble and risk when it probably would be just as easy to go to a state monopoly store?

"It's hard to say," Toler remarks. "A certain class of people gets a kick out of violating the law. And some say it's hotter than ordinary whiskey, that it burns more when you swallow it and that it makes you sicker if you sick, so they figure it must be stronger."

Generally, both state and federal enforcement officials like to bring a moonshining case into federal court, because federal law makes it a felony, with a stiffer sentence and fine than the state's misdemeanor provisions.

"We've had very good success in court," Scanlan says. "Of course we try to go in very well prepared. The courts have backed us up."

Officials say it's difficult to estimate what moonshining in Ohio costs in lost revenue, except that it's more than $10 per gallon to the federal government and about $3—plus state monopoly profit—is Ohio.

But enforcement chief Smith adds that "this small crew (Toler) presently has a man in Portsmouth, one in Youngstown and two in Cleveland) undoubtedly saves the state much more in taxes than the cost of running the entire enforcement division."

AAU to Ask Congress to Investigate Rival NCAA

Hull Charges 'Power Grab'

Says Group Tries To Sabotage Other

NEW YORK (AP)—Col. Don Hull of the Amateur Athletic Union, bitterly denouncing a policy statement by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, has called for a congressional investigation of the activities of the rival group.

Hull, executive director of the AAU, characterized a tough, four-point policy statement by the NCAA as a power-grab attempt charged the NCAA with attempting "to sabotage the major events for the indoor season."

His blistering statement, issued Thursday in the wake of the NCAA convention in Los Angeles, charged the collegiate group with "another in the series of NCAA blackmail attempts to destroy the AAU."

At issue was NCAA action Wednesday by which the 600 members are pledged to a policy that calls for withdrawal from membership in the AAU until the situation with that group improves; a boycott of AAU events not sanctioned by three new federations which have invaded fields governed by the AAU; withdrawal of all personnel from AAU committees in basketball, gymnastics and track and field, and a limitation on the use of facilities and equipment.

The long, complex struggle between the two groups has attracted the attention of President Kennedy, who voiced his concern over the adverse effect the squabble may have over the makeup of the 1964 U.S. Olympic team. He has asked Gen. Douglas MacArthur to mediate the dispute. NCAA and AAU officials are expected to meet with MacArthur in the near future.

"At a time when General of the Army Douglas MacArthur has called for the AAU and the NCAA to mediate the track and field controversy, the NCAA had adopted a four-point program designed to torpedo the chances of the United States in all international competitions, including the Pan American and Olympic Games," Hull said.

"The only effective means to get at the root of the NCAA grab for power," Hull continued, "is for a complete investigation of the activities of this association by the Congress of the United States."

"There are many questions which can only be answered in such an investigation. For example, the International Olympic Committee has questioned the NCAA policy on athletic scholarships."

Courts May Decide Dispute On Liston-Patterson Bout

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Unless this is all a lot of ballyhoo-and it might be-the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston rematch very well may be staged in a courtroom before it reaches a ring.

Patterson, who has the contractual rights to name the date, site and promoter, announced Wednesday that the fight would be held in Miami Beach, April 4, under the promotion of Championship Sports, Inc.

Salem 8th Graders Post 4th Victory

Tinsley chalked up 18 points to spark Salems eighth grade basketball team to a 53-30 victory over Lisbon in a clash at the Blue Devils court Thursday.

It was the fourth win in five starts for the Quakers who led all the way by period scores of 10-5, 25-7 and 39-24.

The Red and black canned 23 of 68 field goal attempts and seven of 14 from the free throw lane.

Bloomberg chipped in with 10 points for the winners. Blair paced Lisbon with 12 markers.

McKinley, 4th Street Win League Contests

McKinley School rallied in the fourth period to defeat Prospect 15-12 in Mickey McGuire League action at Prospect School Thursday.

In another tilt, Fourth Street raced to a 12-2 lead in the initial period and went on to beat Buckeye 51-10.

McKinley trailed for three periods by scores of 6-5, 10-7 and 12-9. The winners blanked Prospect 6-0 in the final frame.

Greene led McKinley with five points. Lutsch collected six markers for the losers.

Barnes sparked Fourth Street with 16 points as his team held a 17-6 margin at intermission and a 39-6 spread at the end of the third stanza.

Jackson chipped in with 8 points for the winners and Spack had six. Shoff and Todd collected four markers each for Buckeye.

Liston's first reaction was that he was less than completely enchanted about it all. Then Thursday he came out with a firm "no."

Which means, at the moment, the fight is off again. Or at least up in the air.

Actually, neither Patterson nor Liston are making their comments directly. They're coming through attorneys, advisors and such like, Patterson's attorney, Julius November and Liston's advisor, Jack Nilon.

Liston, of course, gained the title with a first-round knockout of Patterson in Chicago Sept. 23. Under the terms of the contract for that fight, Patterson holds the right to name the date, site and promoter. There also is a clause calling for a $1 million penalty in case Liston violates the contract.

But if Liston won't fight on Patterson's terms: "We'll go to court," said November. "We don't want to do that. But what else can you do?" "Sonny met Patterson in the ring and he can meet him in court," replied Nilon in the Liston camp.

Cubs Hire Athletic Director

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Along with three vice presidents, 12 coaches and a record of being in the National League's second division deep freeze since 1946, the managerless Chicago Cubs now have an athletic director.

President P. K. Wrigley, in another baseball innovation, has pinned that title on Robert V. Whitlow, 43, who stands 6 feet 5, weighs 240 pounds and holds the rank of colonel in the U.S. Air Force.

Whitlow, who retires from the USAF Feb. 1, says that before the Cub offer his only objective was to "make the transition to Mr. The military career of the Fresno Calif., native includes:

Sporting a winning smile, the burly, well-tanned Whitlow was introduced to newsmen Thursday. There were these comments:

Wrigley—"I had been looking for a man. My nephew (Wrigley

"Bud" Offield) knew the girl the colonel married and suggested he may be the man I wanted. With his military background he knows standardization and discipline—and as a man who learned to take orders, he is best qualified to give them.

Receives Salary, Not Contract

"Whitlow is on a salary and not a contract. He will co-ordinate off-the-field player personnel activities of the players with the Cubs and associated minor league clubs. He will supervise the assignments of head coaches and managers in consultation with other members of the management team."

Whitlow—"I am not a disciplinarian but I like to get things done. I generally will be overseeing the whole system for education of ball players. Sometimes I will be in baseball uniform and

Rogers Hornsby Is Buried In Texas Cemetery

HORNSBY BEND, Tex. (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, whose almost matchless ability to swing a baseball bat gained him the sport's highest honors, was buried Thursday in a cemetery in the hill country of central Texas.

The casket containing the Rajah's body was placed in a grave beside that of his parents. More than 100 of his relatives are buried in the same cemetery.

Hornsby, 66, died Saturday in Chicago from a heart condition.

Almost 300 persons, many of them baseball figures, stood around the burial site as the Rev. William A. Crosland of the First Southern Presbyterian Church in Austin conducted services.

Pact Still Has 6 Years To Go

Cleveland Figures To Lose Gate-Appeal Without Brown

CLEVELAND (AP) — The

Cleveland Browns figure to lose more than a modicum of their glamor and gate-appeal as Paul E. Brown passes from head coach to a desk-riding vice presidency.

Owner-president Arthur B. Modell, who came from New York ten years ago to buy the Browns for some $4 million, fired "precision Paul" Wednesday as coach and general manager of the National Football League team.

His contract, calling for somewhere between $50,000 and $80,000 a year and containing some stock-buying options, has six years to go.

Coach Proud Of Team

"The Browns have been to me a personal family type of thing over the years, and I've been intensely proud of them," Paul said today as he chatted informally in his Shaker Heights home.

Brown said Modell told him last Monday he planned a drastic change relative to the coaching staff, and that they met Wednesday with their legal representatives for the formal meeting at which Modell announced his decision.

"I tried to talk to him in terms of a terminal settlement on salary which would set me free entirely," Brown said, "but met with no success. My contract was not broken by Mr. Modell, for my salary remains the same and only my duties are changed.

"Ernie Godfrey, that grand old Ohio Stater, once told me: 'If you stay in coaching long enough, everything in the world will happen to you.' Well, it has happened to me—and I never thought it would."

Brown said NFL Commissioner Pete Roselle tried to deter Modell's action without success.

"I have received telegrams and telephone calls from most of the other league members," Brown said, "and all said they regretted I wouldn't be on the sidelines with the team. Most of 'em said, 'We played to beat you personally, as much as we played to beat the Browns.'"

The fans, too, will miss him and his brown suit and his toe-scuffed brown shoes with which he punished the turf when things went wrong. Officials will miss his eternal criticisms from the bench. And the press will miss his pungent post-game remarks, win or lose.

SOMETHING WORTH SEEING

I want to thank the Harry Lundren's for their beautiful and interesting display "Santa's Work Shop."

So many people stopped there to look it over. They live on West Park Avenue just down from the square on the way out to the Country Store.

Next year you want to be sure to see this. Harry is retired from Republic Rubber. He also was head man at the Street Fair for years. His wife works at the Home Savings and Loan here in town.

THE HOUSE THAT GREW OUT OF A BOOK!

The book, of course, was a savings bankbook! On its pages was written the "success story" of a family that wanted a home of their own. Each deposit was a chapter that carried the story a bit further along toward its happy ending . . . the down payment on the home of their dreams. Adding DIVIDENDS, all through the book, was a big help! And this, of course, made the family's savings grow much faster to the total they required. Our Dividend rate on savings is The Highest Insured Rate Available In Salem!
